BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

The famous American inventor, Thomas Alva Edison, was born on February 11, 1847 in Milan, Ohio and grew up in Port Huron, Michigan. Edison received very little formal education and began his working career at the age of twelve selling newspapers and candy on the Grand Trunk Railway between Port Huron and Detroit. In 1863, Edison became a telegraph operator, traveling throughout the South and the Midwest. Edison patented his first invention, an electric vote recorder, in 1868 and the next year he moved to New York to become a full-time inventor. In New York, Edison formed his first business manufacturing telegraph equipment, and in 1871 he moved his laboratory and factory to Newark, New Jersey.

One of Edison's most lasting contributions to scientific invention was the creation of the research laboratory. Edison employed many skilled craftsmen and engineers, later known as the "Edison Pioneers", who assisted in his research. In 1876, Edison established a new laboratory at Menlo Park, New Jersey where he developed the first successful electric light bulb. Edison quickly became a founding member of the new electric companies and opened Pearl Street Center Power Station in New York City in 1882. Two years later, Edison's wife Mary Stillwell Edison died and in 1886 Edison married Mina Miller. In 1887 Edison established a new laboratory in West Orange, New Jersey. In 1889 the inventor formed Edison General Electric but sold his interest in the electricity companies to the new General Electric in 1892, created through a merger of Edison General Electric and Thomson-Houston.

Throughout his lifetime Edison applied for 1,093 patents. Some of his most well known inventions are the electric incandescent light (1879), the phonograph (1888), the kineotograph (1889) and the storage battery (1910). In 1929, Henry Ford honored his friend, Thomas A. Edison, by combining the grand opening of his Edison Institute (now known as The Henry Ford) with the 50th Anniversary of Edison's invention of the electric incandescent light bulb, a celebration called "Light's Golden Jubilee." Thomas Edison died on October 18, 1931, at the age of eighty-four.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Accession 1630 is organized into sixteen series, covering a wide variety of topics related to the life and inventions of Thomas A. Edison. The collection was processed in increments, beginning in the 1980s and then completed in 1998. The bulk of the collection can be divided into three main categories; manuscripts related to Edison's personal life and professional career, the papers of the Recording Artists affiliated with Edison's various phonograph companies, and graphic materials related to Edison's life and career. The Thomas A. Edison collection also contains papers and photographs related to individual Edison Pioneers, the development and production of Edison inventions, and the friendship between Henry Ford and Thomas Edison, culminating in Ford's creation and dedication of the Edison Institute in 1929.

The box numbering system for series I-VIII is consecutive, however, in IX-XVI each series starts over again with Box 1.

Series I: Manuscripts,* includes five different categories of manuscripts. Boxes 1-3 include letters to and from Thomas Edison from the 1860s through 1930. Boxes 4-7 include correspondence with Henry Ford's office. This material is arranged by date and does not distinguish by subject or content, and in general is conducted by their respective office staff. All correspondence written by various Edison family members is included in Box 9. General correspondence, arranged alphabetically by correspondent, with a brief description and date is covered in Box 10 and 11. The last box in the series includes non-correspondence manuscripts, with brief descriptions included in the inventory.

Series II: Thomas Alva Edison Notes and Drawings,* contains drawings, notes and sketches signed by or attributed to Thomas A. Edison.

Series III: Documents,* includes agreements, blueprints, contracts, deeds, financial data and mortgage papers. Materials are arranged by date and cover the period from 1856-1925.

Series IV: Patents,* contains copies of all of Thomas Edison patents. The patents are arranged in numerical order, including an inventory by classification and chronology included in the first box.

Series V: Edison Pioneers,* covers the Edison "Pioneers" and is divided into four sections. Boxes 26-42 cover materials pertaining to each individual Pioneer. The members included in Edison Pioneers are those persons associated with Thomas A. Edison or connected with his work up to and including 1885, and associate members who were associated with him or connected with his work between 1886 and 1900. The series is arranged alphabetically by Pioneer name and then chronologically within each Pioneer's folder. Box 43 contains general Edison Pioneer information, and the records of Frank A. Wardlaw, who served as secretary to the group. Box 44 includes copies of the Edison Pioneers' constitution and by-laws, covering the years between 1918 and 1932. The following two boxes contain later correspondence between the Edison Institute and the descendant family members of the Edison Pioneers, arranged alphabetically by Pioneer name.

Series VI: Edison Artifacts,* includes a wide assortment of items grouped together as "artifacts," in some cases including three-dimensional materials. The items range from a tinfoil recording allegedly made by Sarah Bernhardt to the wedding invitation of Thomas Edison's daughter, Madeleine. The collection is arranged chronologically.

Series VII: Printed Matter,* consists of printed material, including periodical articles, addresses, and pamphlets. Additional materials, including the trade catalog collection, can be found in the research library collection.

Series VIII: Recording Artists,* includes the papers and photographs of music artists affiliated with Edison's various phonograph companies. The series is arranged alphabetically by individual artist.

Series IX: Photographs, is arranged according to subject. This series is divided into three parts. The first part consists of the original series (these photographs have been entered into the museum's collection management software). The second part, the Photographs Addendum, includes images processed during the 1998 TAE Project. The third part contains oversize photographs. This series contains a wide variety of photographs relating to Thomas A. Edison's family and personal life, the lives and work of individual Edison Pioneers, the creation and production of Edison inventions and the establishment and operation of Edison's many companies. This series also contains images of Edison's contemporaries and acquaintances, such as Henry Ford, George Eastman, Harvey Firestone and Charles Steinmetz. Some of the photographs in the addendum are copies of original Edison images housed in other institutions. Other photographs in this series are copies of original documents housed in other series of the collection, particularly EI 1929.

Series X: Menlo Park, contains over 200 photonegatives, photographs and lantern slide transparencies of the original site of Thomas A. Edison's Menlo Park Laboratory compound. The majority of the images were taken during Thomas Edison and Henry Ford's 1928 visit to Menlo Park, New Jersey prior to the compound's re-location to Greenfield Village. The expedition was photographed by Ford Motor Company Engineering Department photographers and kept as a separate numbered series. The series includes images of the Sarah Jordan Boarding House, the remains of the Laboratory and related buildings, many different views of the roads leading to the compound and the process of dismantling the buildings. In addition to Thomas Edison and Henry Ford, the expedition included members of Edison's family, most notably sons Charles and Theodore, and several Edison Pioneers and Associates; such as James Bennett, James Bishop, Henry Campbell, William Hammer, Francis Jehl, William Meadowcroft and Alexander Mungle. Mixed in with the 1928 expedition photographs are copy photos of graphics and images of Menlo Park during Edison's residence (1880-1890) and after the inventor's departure (1900-1913).

This series contains images taken by the Ford Motor Company Engineering Department photographers, the same photographers responsible for the photo collections in Accession 188 and 189. A sample of the original envelopes can be seen in the accession folders. In the late 1970s the former curator of Edisionia gathered the original numbered negatives and other copy photos related to Menlo Park to create this artificial collection. The prefix MP was assigned by the archivist during the 1998 processing project. The separate photograph collection was gathered in 1998 from 'redundant originals' and is not complete.

Many of the photographs are also included in EI 1929, Box 40 under the heading "Greenfield Village-Buildings-Menlo Park Compound-Original Site" and Box 46 in the "Greenfield Village-Buildings-Sarah Jordan Boarding House-Original Site" folder. The images may be accessed through the indices of both #1630 and EI#1929 and the museum's collection management software.

Series XI: Light's Golden Jubilee, is the collection of over 175 photonegatives and photographs taken by the Ford Motor Company Engineering photographers during the Light's Golden Jubilee and dedication of the Edison Institute on October 21, 1929. The series contains images from the day's festivities ranging from the arrival of President Herbert Hoover, Thomas A. Edison and Henry Ford at Smith's Creek Station in Greenfield Village, to many pictures of special guests outside the Clinton Inn, and the reenactment of Edison's invention of incandescent electric light in the Menlo Park Laboratory. In addition, the series contains photographs of Ford and Edison family members, Edison Pioneers and Associates and important figures of the time, including many executives, inventors, political figures and actors such as Dr. Lee de Forest, Will Rogers, Aldoph Ochs, Julius Rosenwald, Sarah M. Sheridan and many others.

This series contains images taken by the Ford Motor Company Engineering Department photographers, the same photographers responsible for the photo collections numbered accession 188 and 189. A sample of the original envelopes can be seen in the accession folders. The prefix LGJ was assigned by the archivist during the processing project. The collection was separately maintained by the former curator of Edisonia, and contains both a negative and photograph for each image. The negatives are glass and nitrate base, a few of the nitrate negatives are in the first stages of deterioration.

Many of the images are also included in EI#1929, with the heading "Edison Institute-Dedication - Light's Golden Jubilee". The photographs may be accessed through the finding aids of both #1630 and EI#1929 and through the museum's collection management software.

Series XII: WJ Hammer Light bulb collection, is a series of photographs and negatives of 238 light bulbs collected by the Edison Pioneer, William J. Hammer, and donated to the Henry Ford. A former Edisonia curator, Hammer made both a safety base negative and 8x10 photograph of each light bulb, presumably from the registrarial photographs. These registrarial photographs originated with the Ford Motor Company Engineering photographers and in the 1950s were transferred to the museum. In consequence, they are not part of the present day archival accession 188 received by the museum in 1964.

Series XIII: ECP Negative Collection consists of Edison-related negatives which have no original number. This ECP designation originally began as a solution to uncataloged negatives within the #1630 collection. Subsequent research revealed many original negative numbers and these negatives have been returned to their original locations within the newly created LGJ and MP Series in #1630 (Series XI and XII). Negatives 1-100 are from the original list compiled by the curator of photographs. Negatives 100+ will consist of the un-numbered negatives of photographs belonging in collections #1630 Series IX: Photographs and EI#1929.

Series XIV: Exhibit Photographs is a collection of photos and graphics formerly on exhibit in the Menlo Park Compound in Greenfield Village and removed in the late 1980s. Earliest photographic documentation of the exhibit indicates that it was originally displayed in the 1930s. Each exhibit graphic was inventoried in the early 1980s before their removal and these inventory numbers have been carefully maintained. Records of this inventory are kept by the registrarial staff and a copy of the relevant sections is housed with this series. From this exhibit documentation it is possible to re-create the massive and detailed photo montage of Edison's work and personal life which was displayed for fifty years in the Menlo Park Compound.

Series XV: Graphics, is a collection of prints (lithographs, engravings, etc.) maps, paintings, charcoal drawings, and calendars. This series contains both professionally printed images of Thomas Edison at various stages in his life and work and images painted and sketched by the admiring public. In addition to these tributes to Edison's public presence, the collection houses engraved images of Edison affiliates, maps of Port Huron and Vienna, Canada and calendars memorializing Edison's inventive and industrious genius.

Series XVI: Photograph Albums and Scrapbooks, contains photograph albums and scrapbooks pertaining to Edison's professional career. Two of the albums contain photographs related to ceremonies honoring Edison, entitled "Dedication Exercise at Menlo Park on May 16th, 1925" and "With Edison at Schenectady 1892." The scrapbooks contain newspaper clippings, three of which document Edison's life and work. One scrapbook contains clippings on Samuel Insull and the criminal investigation of his tenure as president of the Chicago Illuminating Company. The finding aid contains a complete description of each item.

Series XVII: Unprocessed materials, contains 34 boxes of unprocessed items. Also included are multiple albums and loose photographs.
