Detroit Area Library Network

What is it?

- An institutional repository (IR) is a means for managing digital content created by an organization.
- An IR can be used for archival purposes, promotional and PR purposes, and for providing public access to digital content materials.
- The DALNET Digital Archive is a shared IR initially funded by DALNET and maintained by participating institutional members.

What collections can be built?

- Student and faculty papers, publications, and projects
- Institutional or departmental reports, catalogs, yearbooks, etc., for centralized access in a single searchable interface accessible online
- A digitized collection of materials from an important donor

Institutions may create any collection they have a need for.

2005- 2006 State of Michigan At-Risk Student Success Program Report

URI: <http://hdl.handle.net/11061/521>

Date: 2015-06-29

Abstract:

The At-Risk Student Success Program was first authorized as a grant in the 1989-90 community college appropriation act (Public Act 175 of 1989, Public Act 272 of 2000). The original purpose of this grant was to assist community colleges in providing services to at-risk students; however the permitted uses of the grant expanded in fiscal year 1996. At that time utilization of grant funds could also be used for the acquisition, enhancement, or upgrade of equipment and software related to telecommunications, computer systems, or other technologies for use by students, faculty or administrators. The expanded use of the funds continues to the present year. Each college is required to provide information to the state regarding the use of At-Risk grant funds.
